Never in my life have I had to stay so vigilant and live in constant fear of losing my basic freedoms as I have these last few months. Every week it's something else ridiculous! Now I have to explain to a council member why giving untold power to an unelected nobody during a "crisis" isn't a good idea. I have to fight to breath fresh air on a walk or while I shop. Because apparently hypochondria is catchy and common sense is gone! People expecting me to believe that the new normal going into the future will be wearing masks and social distancing is acceptable, and to be praised as righteousness and virtue. That I'm constantly expected to live in fear of dying and death and killing other people just by my very existence. Well then you tell me what is my existence supposed to be? Am I supposed to live, or die trying to live. Or, am I to just give in to the tyranny and stay home because other people are afraid. Please enough is enough. When will this end? Oh that's right when we find a "cure" 🤖 for a virus or eradicate covid neither as far as I can tell are possible. So.....
